

GRAHAM EKINS world wildlife photographer

Graham travels a lot taking photos of wildlife. Yet the photo on the right shows that COVID restricted his travels, so digging this pond was his Lockdown project.

You can find many of his wildlife photos on the Internet, such as :
http://www.flickr.com/photos/graham_ekins_world_wildlife/sets/

For his Hong Kong birds photos and comments on my CD & book:
<https://www.howaion.co.uk/hongkongandme/>

I went to Graham's Wickford lecture on wildlife in 2013. I particularly liked some bird images that showed a sense of humour, which aroused my desire to make a bird-humour music video. Making a music video requires a lot of images and I asked Graham whether he had more photos of "funny birds". As a friendly gesture, I gave him a copy of my CD & book "MUSIC IS HAPPINESS". He kindly wrote a comment after listening and reading. You are all welcome to a free copy of the CD here at St. Andrew's. Please take one.

Graham said he could find time to help me with my photography and I was welcome to any images that he may have. However, we didn't manage to meet up. I googled his photos but didn't find "funny birds" images. In 2015, I saw Graham again at his talk to the Wickford Wildlife Society. He told me he was currently finishing a presentation on Northern Territories Hong Kong. Later, Graham supplied many Hong Kong birds images for my website. When I told him about this Hong Kong to Wickford Display, he kindly sent me beautiful prints of Hong Kong birds. Graham is a great photographer, and a very nice and generous man.